

Alpine Woods Shifters, Book #6 He'll do anything to protect his mate. The last thing Laurie expects when she bumps into Max at the shifter convention is finding her mate. Certainly not that her mate can shift into a leopard. Wolves and leopards mix about as well as water and oil. Or should she say, dogs and cats. Mating him means leaving her family, her town, and the only home she's ever known. But the possibility of a happily ever after is worth the risk, right? Max couldn't be happier with his brazen, feisty wolf, but returning home isn't the welcoming affair he'd expected. In his absence, his brother has been attacked within the leap complex. Something must be seriously wrong. Could someone be using his loved ones to get to him? When his worst fears prove true, his protective instinct goes into overdrive. Will keeping Laurie mean putting her in danger?
