It's funny how the tiniest of things can change your life: an invitation, a simple kiss goodnight, a matchbook. Auden Kelly is in need of a change. She's trading in her nine-to-five sales job for the adventure of a lifetime: a one-year contract with a European tour company. For one full year, Auden will get paid to see the world. What could be better? Her brother gives her a journal, instructing her to document all of her adventures as she travels from country to country. And that's exactly what she does. When a mysterious stranger enters her life, however, everything changes: her expectations, her priorities and her view of the world. And nothing for Auden will ever be the same.
